

Curtis A. Johnson, PT

Curt's professional interest in the foot and postural alignment began in 1985. He has incorporated foot orthoses and treatment into multiple practices and patient populations over the course of his 28 plus years as a physical therapist. Curt's introduction to Postural Restoration (PR), Protonics and proprioceptive type orthoses started in 2002 under the influence of co-workers and PR seminars. Though not limited to treatment of lower extremities, Curt's interest in the interrelationships of the foot and body has grown under the influence of Ron Hruska, Dr. Paul Coffin and world leaders in the field of podiatry. Curt is currently practicing at Impact Physical Medicine, a multidisciplinary and PR certified clinic in St. Paul, Minnesota. Inclusion of the foot in treating many "complex" patients is an important part of the clinic's "system" approach to patient care. A graduate of the University of Minnesota PT program in 1981, Curt has been active in management positions, Minnesota APTA leadership and continuing education, and the promotion of professional collaboration.
